PICNICS

Someone starts the game by saying, "I went for a picnic, and took with me" (for instance) "a plate." The next person adds an article, at the same time repeating the first one, thus: "I went for a picnic and took with me a plate and a cup." So the game continues, until somebody fails to mention all the previous articles.

TOUCH DIVINING

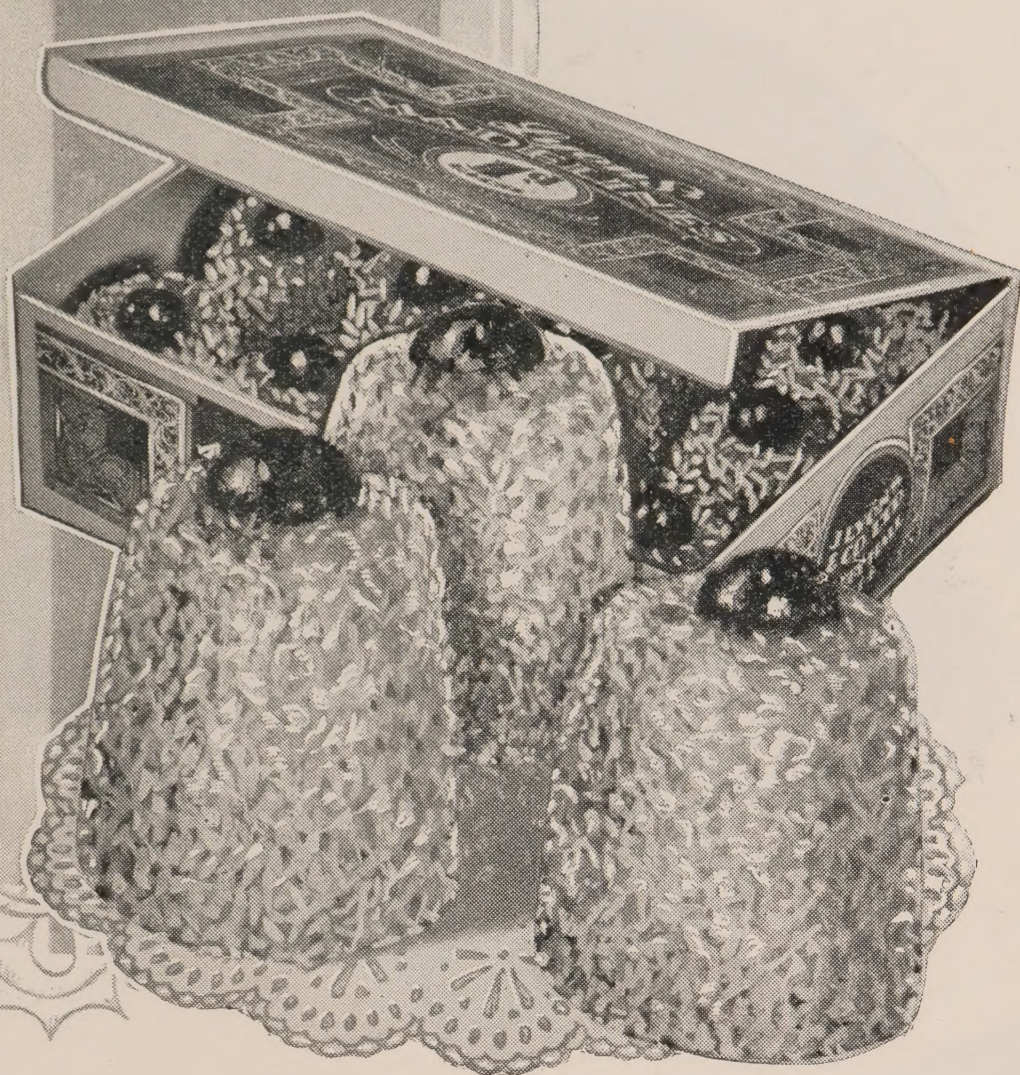

A number of articles are wrapped in paper, and handed round. Each player then writes down exactly what he thinks each article is, judging by his sense of touch alone.

Lyons'

MADELINES

S. 701. These excellent tea dainties have all the traditional features that made the old-time Madelines so popular, and in addition a certain unmistakable quality which comes from the up-to-date baking process used in Lyons' famous Cadby Hall Bakeries. Each one is of light sponge, covered with shredded coconut, and decorated on top with a red cherry. In cartons of 12 for 1/-, or

MUSICAL PARCELS

Wrap up a humorous article in brown paper. This is passed among the players, and when the music stops the player who then has it drops out, and so on, until only two people are left. The parcel then becomes the property of the person who is not holding it when the music ceases. If the parcel turns out to be a large potato, etc., much fun is caused.

Lyons'

CHERRY CAKES

S. 901. Perfectly baked of selected ingredients, which include a liberal amount of choice red cherries, peel and sultanas. The fame of Lyons' Cherry Cakes has spread through every part of the country, and they are, indeed, perfect examples of the combination of high quality and skilful production.

SPOTTING THE CHANGES

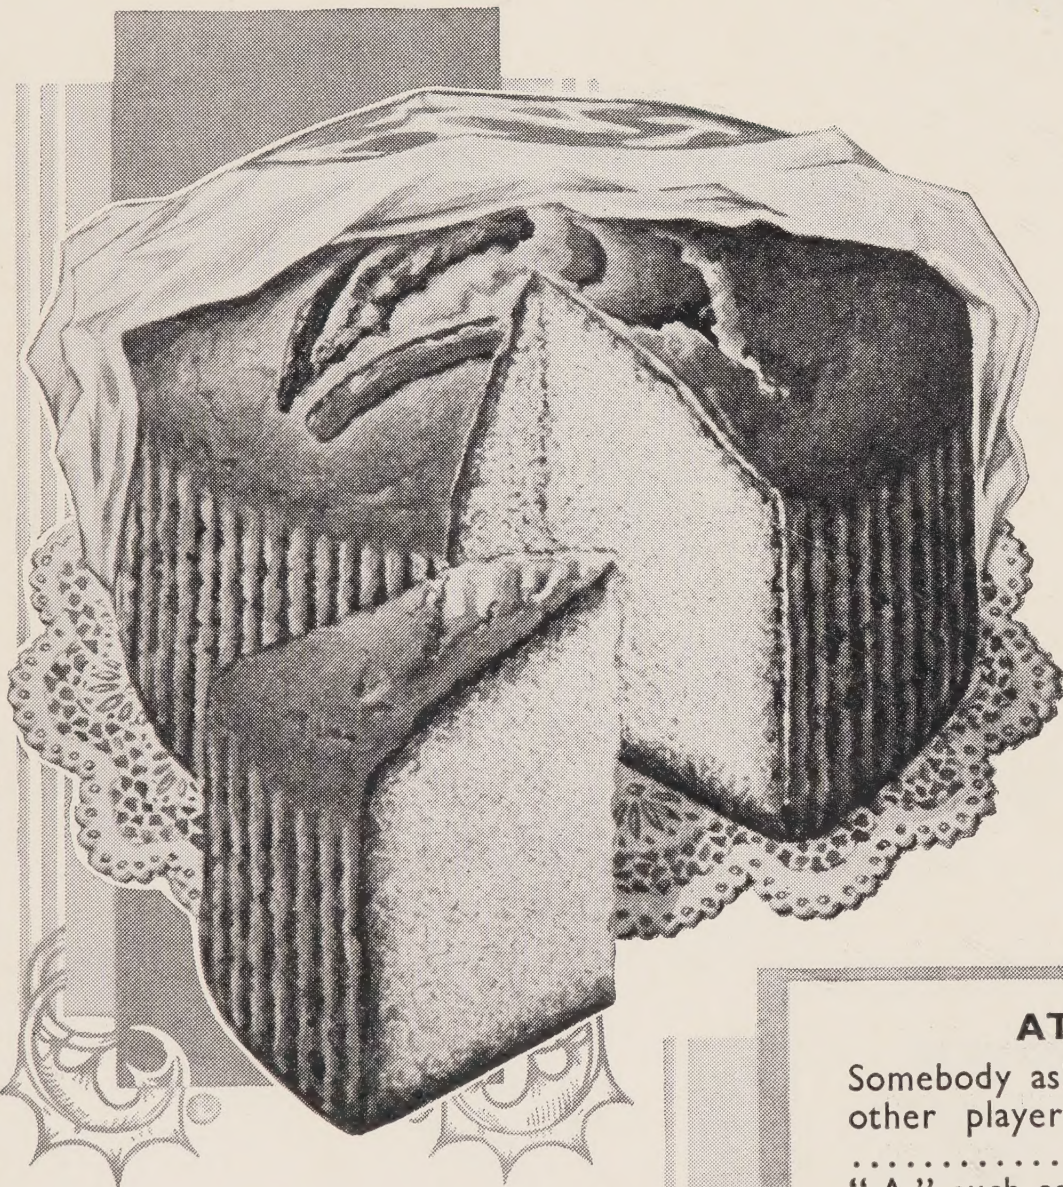

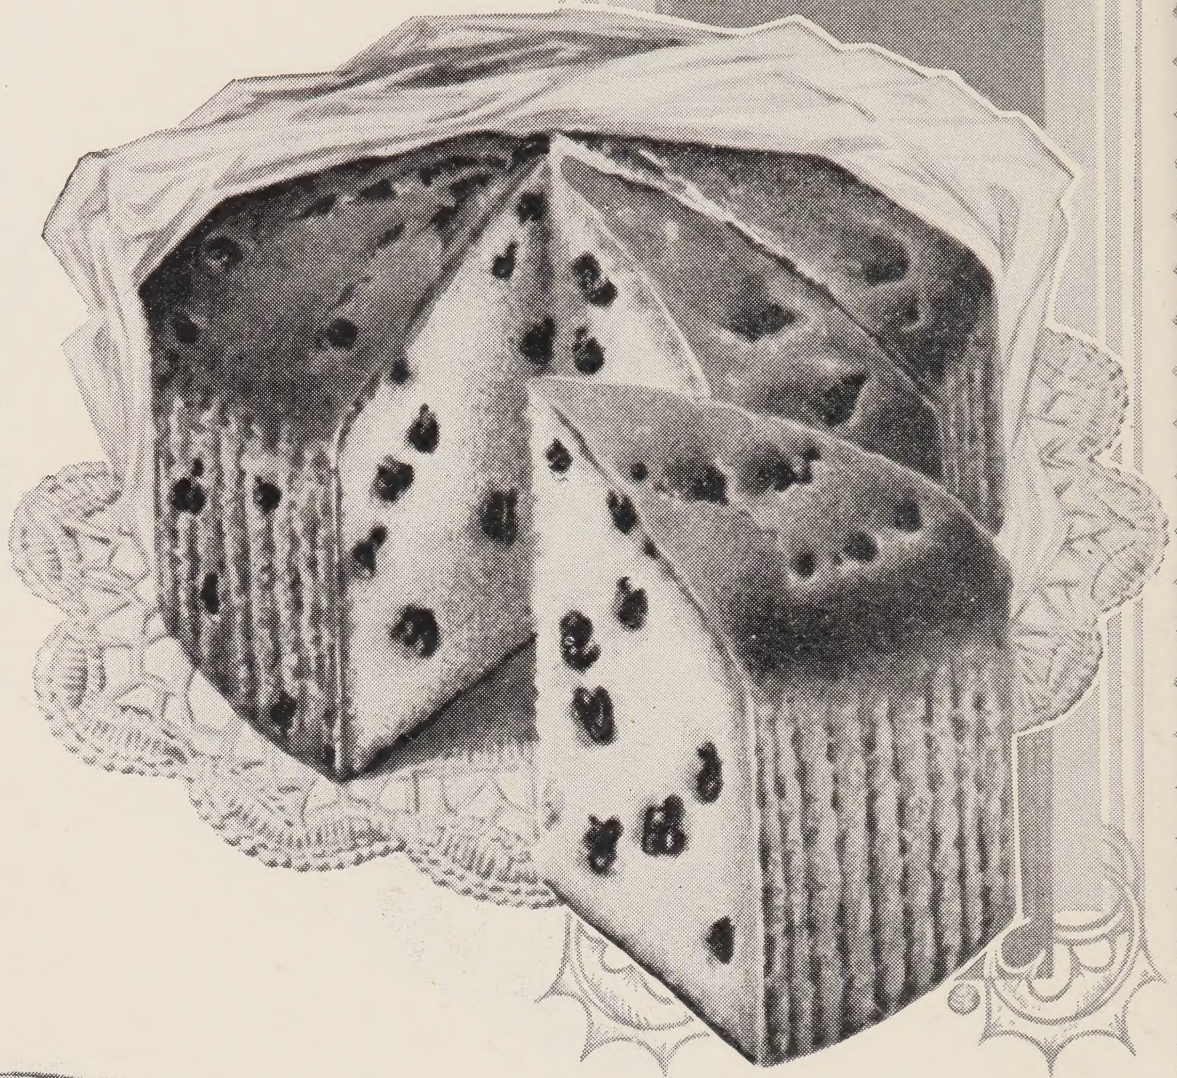

All the players but one go out of the room. The one left behind alters the position of some article—he might, for instance, stand a cup on its head. The others then come in, and have to discover which article has been altered.

Lyons'

SIXPENNY FRUIT CAKES

S. 1001. Each cake is separately wrapped to maintain its perfect freshness. Every Lyons' 6d. Fruit Cake is baked with the greatest skill, in order to bring out the full harmony of flavours provided by the choice selected fruits and other pure ingredients. This cake well maintains its wide popularity.

ATLAS ALPHABET

Somebody asks a question, and says to any other player, "I hear you are going to " (somewhere beginning with "A," such as Athens). "What will you do when you get there?" The person questioned has to answer, using at least three words beginning with "A." The questioner then passes on to the letter "B," with another player, and so on.

Lyons'

CHERRY CAKES

S. 1101. Lyons' 6d. Cherry Cakes have been introduced as the result of a very wide demand. Their quality is in every way excellent, and they are baked of the purest ingredients, which give them a delicious flavour. Each cake is specially wrapped.

FLOWER POT RACING

A race for the kiddies. Invert two empty flower pots, place each end of a piece of string through the holes in their bases, and attach two cotton reels to the string, so that the pots can be lifted by it. The race consists of placing one foot on each flower pot, and then balancing on one pot, while moving the other forward with the string, before stepping upon it.

Lyons

SLAB DUNDEE CAKE

S. 1301. The richest and finest of all slab cakes. It is made of Lyons' incomparable Dundee mixing, which is so justly famous everywhere for its richness and high quality. Filled with choice fruits in wide variety, and covered on top with almonds. A cake which ensures satisfaction everywhere and at any time.

Lyons'

FESTIVE SULTANA CAKES

S. 1402. These fine cakes, so gaily and attractively wrapped and banded, add cheer and warmth to any meal. The fine ingredients combine with the perfect baking in making them the finest and most economical cakes for the Yuletide Season available anywhere. In three convenient sizes, each one a masterpiece of quality and value.

APPRENTICE'S ALPHABET

A player starts by saying, "I apprenticed my son to a" (for instance) "grocer, and the first thing he sold was a D." The next player has to think of what the D stands for. Supposing he guesses Dundee Cake, and this happens to be right, he goes on: "I apprenticed my son to a" (for instance) "Baker, and the first thing he sold was a C" (or any other letter). The next player then guesses what C represents, before proceeding, and so on.

KIDDY KAKES

S. 1501. Of light sponge, covered on top with decorated icing, in a wide variety of flavours and designs. These cakes are both dainty and delicious, and fulfil every requirement for afternoon tea. The purest ingredients only are used in their production. For convenience, Lyons' Kiddy Kakes are packed in special cartons of—

9 for 8^d.

CHAIR CHOOSING

Half the players go outside the room. The remaining half sit down, each with an empty chair beside them. The players outside are admitted, one by one, and have to sit down in one of the empty chairs chosen by the players inside. If the right chair is selected, they are rewarded with one hand-clap; if the wrong chair, by continuous hand-clapping, which persists until they go outside, to try again.

FOLLOWING THE TRAIL

This game is always voted a vast success by the kiddies. Lengths of coloured twine lead all over the house. Each length is allotted to a player, who has to follow it until at last the end is reached and a small prize is discovered. Very intricate "trails" may be arranged by the imaginative hostess.

Lyons'

FRUIT PIES

S. 3201. Of rich, golden brown crust, surrounding luscious fruit in wide variety. As "no trouble" sweets, Lyons' delicious fruit pies are incomparably good, served either hot or cold. Each one is specially cartoned, and supplied on its own tin plate, ready for heating.

EGG-BLOWBALL

Books, representing "goals," are placed at either end of a table, in the centre of which is a well-blown egg. The players are divided into two sides, and the object of the game is to blow the egg through the opponents' goal. The rules are the same as for Association Football. A wealth of fun is caused by the unexpected movements of the egg, caused by its oval shape.

Lyons'

INDIVIDUAL FRUIT PIES

S. 3301. The very economical price of these remarkable pies is no guide to their quality and delicacy. They are made of the finest, crisp, golden brown crust, and filled with the choicest fruit in great variety. They are ideal as a sweet for all occasions.

AND THEN

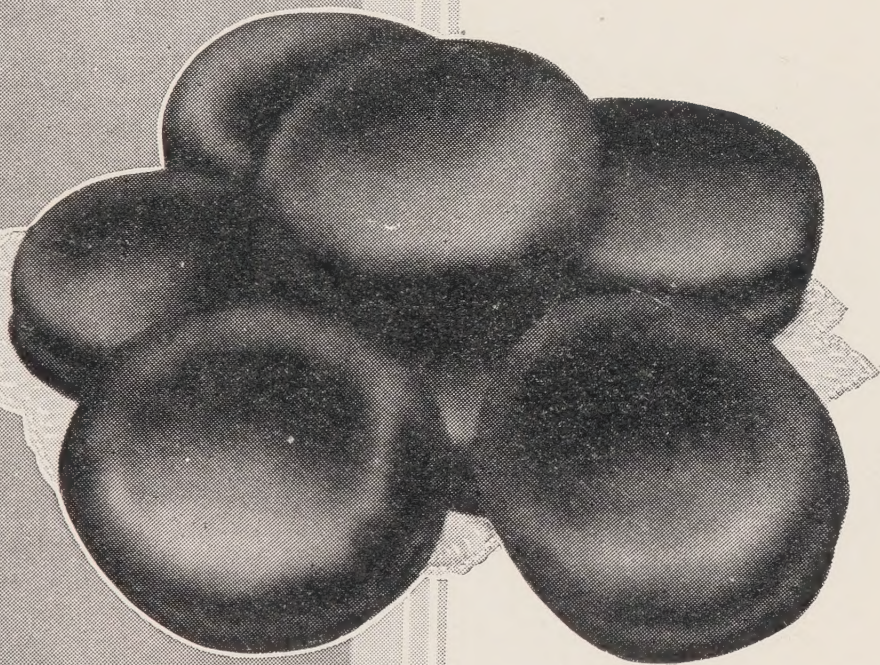

One player tells a story, ending with the words "And then the boiler burst." At these words, the remaining players have to run to a given point, turn round three times, and return to their places. The last one to do so becomes storyteller. The story, of course, may be long or short, and many amusing twists can be given to it.

THE WIZARD WHISTLE

The magician holds a wand, from which hangs a piece of string, and on the end of this a whistle. The whistle blows once for "Yes" and twice for "No." Actually the magician has a second whistle in his pocket to the tip of which is fixed a short length of rubber tubing. The tubing goes down the conjuror's sleeve, and terminates in a bulb in his left hand. When the bulb is pressed the whistle blows.

DOMINO DIVINING

Lay 16 dominoes in a row, then let somebody move any number of dominoes up to 12, from the right of the row to the left, singly. Then you pick up a domino, and its spots total the number of dominoes moved. To do this, you lay the dominoes so that, from left to right, the first one totals 12, the next 11, and so on, down to the double blank. The three dominoes at the right end may total anything. To find the number moved, pick up the fourth one from the right.
